

ENTERTAINING + TRAVEL

Hotel California

A boutique Beverly Hills hotel gets a refresh from designer Kelly Wearstler

Written by Laura Fenton

PRINT

f t g+ s

f Like 8

Photo: Image courtesy of the Viceroy Hotel Group

When it opened in 1999, Maison 140 put interior designer Kelly Wearstler on the map as an up-and-coming hotel designer to watch. Under Wearstler's guidance, the 44 guest rooms at the hotel have recently undergone a complete makeover inspired by belle époque Paris. The revamped chambers now feature a palette of persimmon and kumquat, including silk moiré wall coverings by Robert Crowder, alabaster lamps, and tufted headboards. Wearstler's design choices—like mirrored wall panels and open fretwork screens—cleverly make the most of the rooms' petite proportions.

Maison 140, 140 South Lasky Dr., Beverly Hills, CA, 310-281-4000; maison140beverlyhills.com

For more high-style restaurants, hotels, and shops, click here.